POETRY.

Its words
Are few, but deep and solemn, and they break
Fresh from the fount of feeling.—Percival.

For the Columbian Fountain.

THE EMIGRANT'S DREAM.

BY F. CASSIDY.

AIR—Burn's Farewell.

Why bid my fancy still explore
The beauties of my native Isle?
And I so far from Erin's shore,
Must I behold her winning smile?
Borne on the swift grey wings of night,
My boyhood haunts methinks I view!
Alas! 'tis only fancy's flight,
Hibernia dear, farewell, adieu!

No winds that hurry o'er the deep
Can speed their way with such a flight,
While o'er me visions hold their sway,
In magic dreams whene'er I sleep,
I rove through Erin's wide domain,
My former joys for to renew.
Alas! I wake in mental pain:
Hibernia dear, farewell, adieu!

There genial virtue marks that soil;
Health cheers the darkest hour of age:
There nature sows her balmly gifts,
And dwell the minstrel, bard and sage.
This breast must feel excessive joy
Those native charms, whene'er I view:
Thus Morpheus does my sense decoy:
Hibernia dear, farewell, adieu!

Ah! matchless Isle, of health and fame,
Oppression forced thy son to roam—
To flee the tyrant's cruel chain
I'm now exiled from friends and home!
Though in a distant land I sigh,
My spirit still remains with you;
Methinks thy freedom's drawing nigh:
Hibernia dear, farewell, adieu!

CHOICE READING.

"If you enlighten the people, do not forget that this is but half the work. Let them be made virtuous and religious, or you leave them more exposed to danger than they were before."

From the Gardiner Cold Water Fountain.

RUM AND RELIGION.

CONCLUDED.

The Angel, Gabriel, was first sent to Zacharias, and his wife, "who were both righteous before God, walking in all the commandments and ordinances of the Lord blameless." The message to them was that they should have a son, and should call his name John. "He shall be great in the sight of the Lord, and shall drink neither wine nor strong drink." The same Angel was next sent to Joseph, and Mary of Nazareth, a city of Galilee, with similar tidings, in reference to the Saviour. And why to Nazareth? Because firstly, Joseph and Mary were just and righteous persons—temperate in all things; secondly, that "it might be fulfilled, which was spoken by the Prophets," that the Saviour should be called a Nazarine, separate and Holy unto the Lord, drinking neither wine nor strong drink. The requirement in becoming a Nazarine and separating himself unto the Lord, was, "He shall separate himself from wine and strong drink, and shall drink no vinegar of wine or vinegar of strong drink, neither shall he drink any liquor of grapes, nor eat moist grapes or dried. All the days of his separation shall he eat nothing that is made of the vine tree, from the kernels even to the husk." For further light upon this matter, the reader is referred to the address of the Angel to Manoah's wife, in respect to Sampson, and the reply of Hananah to Eli, in respect to Samuel. We may trace the old Testament through, and we can find no account of God's approving the use of intoxicating drinks. He commanded Moses to smite the rock in Horeb, that water should come out of it, and the children of Israel should drink. All through that long and tedious journey of the Israelites to Canaan, water was furnished them; but no strong drink. Sampson after his conflict with the Philistines, in which he slew a thousand men with the jaw of an ass, "was sore athirst," and called upon the Lord, "that he might not die of thirst, and fall into the hands of the uncircumcised Philistines." "God clave a hollow place that was in the jaw, and there came water thereout; and when he had drunk, his spirit came again and he revived."

Here is a strong example, as strong as need be, to show up the utter falsity of strong drinks contributing to strength or recruiting the system when fatigued. Sampson, solitary and alone, had maintained a battle against three thousand men. With no weapon than the jaw-bone—heaps upon heaps had he slain, a thousand men; had discomfited his enemies, and came off victorious. There can be no question that he was thirsty and much fatigued. But he sought not for wine nor strong drink; he satiated his thirst from [the water poured forth from the jaw, and thereby was revived.

"O madness! to think use of strongest wines And strongest drinks our chief support of health, When God, with these forbidden, made choice to rear His mighty champion, strong above compare, Whose drink was only from the limpid brook."

Pass into the New Testament, and we find no countenance given to the use of intoxicating drinks whatever. In the miracle which Christ performed at the wedding in Cana of Galilee, of converting water into wine, there is no evidence at all that the wine had fermented—that it had any intoxicating properties. It was made out of "water." "Jesus said unto them, (the servants) fill the water-pots with water. And they filled them to the brim. And he said unto them, draw out now and bear unto the Governor of the feast. The Governor was well pleased with it, and pronounced it good wine. This is the sum and substance of the story about the Saviour's turning water into wine. It is no argument, not the least, in favor of any person's making use of wine strong drink. Then, again, Paul's exhortation to Timothy, which is quoted as an example by these Rum-Religionists. "Drink no longer water, but use a little wine for thy stomach's sake, and thine often infirmities," is no argument nor excuse in favor of their drinking, or selling all kinds of intoxicating drinks.—Timothy was sick, and debilitated. Therefore he was advised to make use of "a little wine"—not a pint or a quart or two a day, to resuscitate the exhausted energy of his body. But there is no evidence that Timothy ever made use of wine in any shape.—But suppose he did, it is a pretty piece of business for these sham-christians to take the case of an unfortunate sick man, to whom "a little wine" was cautiously recommended, and use it as a justification for drunkenness, with all its horrid and awful attendants. Again, the plea that "every creature of God is good, and nothing to be refused," &c., which is raised by these objects of pity, amount to nothing. Strong drink is not a creature of God. The manufacture, sale and use of intoxicating drinks are in direct violation of the will and law of God. Said Christ to his disciples, "Take heed to yourselves, lest at any time your hearts be overcharged with suffering and drunkenness." He might just as well have said that they should do neither of these things at all. "Any time" comprehends every moment of time, and would completely cut off all opportunities for these mock-christians to indulge in pouring down strong drinks. Says the Apostle, "Let us walk honestly as in the day; not in rioting and drunkenness, not in chambering and wantonness, not in strife and envying. But put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ, and make not provision for the flesh to fulfil the lusts thereof." This implies that all rum-professors of religion are ignorant of the Saviour; that they are not what they profess to be; that they are destitute of every principle of christianity, and under the government and direction of Satan.—Quit rioting and drunkenness, and then "put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ." Vice must first be abandoned before the Saviour can be put on. Therefore for rum-drinkers, wine-bibbers, cider-suckers and miserable traffickers in intoxicating poisons to pretend to a knowledge of religion—of christianity, is as idle as anything can possibly be. There is no more truth in their professions than there was sense in Satan's offering the Saviour all the kingdoms of the world, and the glory of them, if he would fall down and worship him. Satan attempted a game of deception, and drinking professors and rum-sellers are doing the same. They may deceive themselves, and be puffed up with false righteousness,—they may deceive churches, and the community, but there is one, the Almighty—Him they cannot deceive! "Wo unto them that rise up early in the morning, that they may follow strong drink; that continue until night, till wine inflame them! Wo unto them that are mighty to drink wine, and men of strength to mingle strong drink! There is no peace, saith my God, to the wicked."
